Notable features:

Pleasant enough group of very small workers' houses (11' wide), but the pressure of Baltimore Street commerce places them in question. Houses opposite were removed and replaced by a one-story bottling works expansion. Most windows are still 6/6 and cornices in pretty good condition. A redesign of the area is needed.

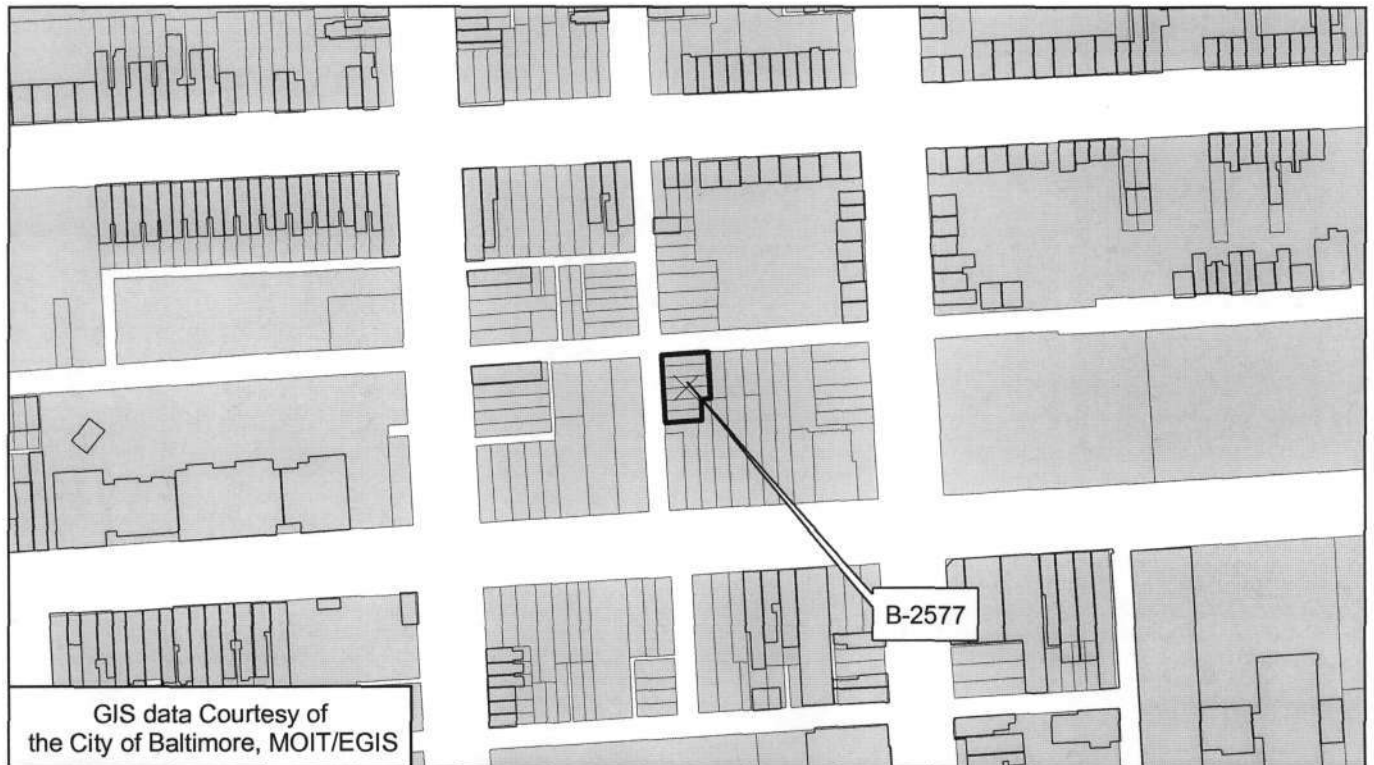

Environmental context:

Small, quiet street which is good for residential. These houses nicely scaled to size of street. Both use and building across-street do not enhance housing.
